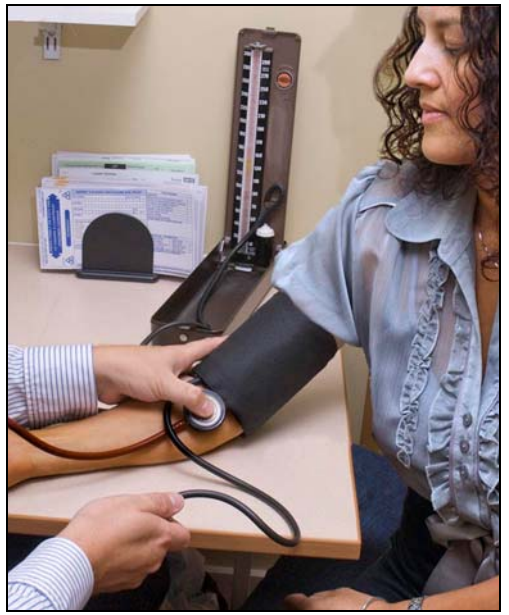
Have Your Say….
on local health services



Doctors in the East Surrey GP practices have grouped together with other health professionals to redesign your local health services.

Now your help is needed to help plan future developments.

Please have your say.

Dear Patient,

When this group (called ESyDoc) was set up to redesign local health services, I was asked to be on it to represent you, the patient.

We feel that health services should be situated as near as possible to where you live - you may have an opinion on that.

In fact you may have opinions on many things to do with the local health service. These opinions are what we would like to hear from you now.

Of course some things may not be possible or affordable, but unless we are aware of what you want it is difficult for us to keep moving in the right direction.

We have already made some changes which you might have noticed:

- Consultants now visit doctors' surgeries to look at patients with problems rather than patients having to make a trip to hospital.

- X-Rays. There is now a system set up in some areas to allow x-rays to be sent electronically. This will enable more clinics to be run closer to home and in future allow your doctor to view your x-rays immediately.

- More local specialist services. For example we have arranged for diabetic retinopathy clinics and a new sexual health service to be opened locally.

- In response to patients' concerns about the length of wait for orthopaedic operations we have arranged for some of these operations to take place under the NHS in a private hospital, so the waiting time has been much reduced.

We hope you like these changes and we look forward to reading your comments and suggestions.

Yours truly

Gordon Ridgway
